Q: What is rule making power

A: The Central Government has the power to make rules for carrying out the provisions of the Act, including guidelines which can be put in place by commercial organizations under section 9 and guidelines for sanction of prosecution under sub-section (1) of section 19. Every rule made under this Act must be laid before each House of Parliament.

Q: How corruption is prevented

A: This Act outlines specific offenses and penalties related to corruption. It addresses instances of bribery of public servants (sections 7, 7A, 8, and 9), bribery by commercial organizations (sections 9 and 10), public servants obtaining undue advantage (section 11), and criminal misconduct by public servants, including illicit enrichment (section 13). It also establishes special judges (Chapter II) to handle these cases. The Act does not describe preventative measures outside of defining these offenses and establishing penalties.
